PURUS TECHNOLOGIES WINS NEXT CONTRACT TO PROVIDE DECISION MANAGEMENT SERVICES TO SASKATCHEWAN'S MINISTRY OF HIGHWAYS & INFRASTRUCTURE

July 30th, 2009

PURUS Technologies Inc. (PURUS), a Calgary based Information Management solutions firm, has just been awarded a 10 month contract with options for 12 month extensions to continue the development, management and implementation of the Ministry's Information Management Office ("IMO") for the Saskatchewan government.

PURUS' DecisionAlignment® methodology and its rich Decision Management Framework, DecisionSurface®, are the basis for the how the Ministry's Information Management Office ("IMO") will work directly with its departments and operations to help align information and Systems of Record with overall Ministry Objectives.

Jim Gibson, the President of PURUS explains, "The strategic and tactical thinkers of governments and corporations have to make decisions every day – some easy and of little significance, others, difficult with great consequence. Decisions, for better or worse, can change an organization's trajectory. However, when consistently correct decisions are made, they will inspire and create real value for organizations and their employees. Gibson continues, "Decision Management is a natural evolution of Business Intelligence. When we focus on decisions we need a much richer understanding of what data is, new immersive ways to view data and most importantly the ability to richly collaborate with colleagues. At MHI, this starts with the IMO."

Ted Stobbs, Assistant Deputy Minister, Corporate Services, notes, "MHI wants to lead the way in how we deliver transformative government. The IMO vision is a key platform in our recently announced "Ready for the Future" initiative. Developed in conjunction with PURUS, The IMO helps our departments, field operations and teams understand the importance of alignment and the value of good decision making, based on a foundation of excellence in data, collaboration and work process. This contract reflects our commitment to working with PURUS over the coming year to make the IMO a reality and model for others."
